As Mayor and Council of the City of Weyburn, we wish to share our support—both with our own residents and with our neighbouring municipalities—for the Seven Stars Energy Wind Project.

We recognize that decisions like this one are not made lightly. As local leaders, we are all too familiar with the pressure of navigating diverse opinions and the weight of decisions that impact our communities today and for generations to come. That's why we believe it's important to speak openly and clearly about the long-term benefits this project can bring—not only to one area, but to our entire region.

At a time when infrastructure dollars are stretched thin and the needs of our growing communities continue to mount, we believe it is critical to welcome responsible, forward-thinking investment. Like any major infrastructure, this project represents a long-term investment in our future. Turning it away could mean turning down opportunities we may not see again for years.

The Seven Stars Energy Wind Project is a $500 million investment in southeast Saskatchewan—a scale of investment that is both rare and transformative. It brings the promise of construction and operational jobs, long-term economic activity, and the kind of momentum that signals our region is open for business, ready to grow, and prepared to lead.

Beyond the immediate economic impact, this project strengthens our energy landscape with greater diversity and resilience. It positions our region as a hub for innovation and sustainability, and it helps attract the skilled talent and additional investment that drive progress in today's energy economy.

We understand that no project of this magnitude is without challenges. But we also know that through collaboration, respectful dialogue, and shared vision, our region can rise to meet those challenges together. The success of this project will depend on open communication, community engagement, and a commitment to making sure the development reflects the values and priorities of those who call this region home.

The City of Weyburn is proud to stand in support of the Seven Stars Energy Wind Project. We look forward to working alongside our neighbouring RMs and municipal partners to ensure this opportunity brings lasting, shared benefit to the southeast Saskatchewan region.

On behalf of Weyburn City Council,

Mayor Jeff Richards
City of Weyburn
